John William Smith is a teacher. He lives and works in Dubai. He works for the Higher Colleges of Technology, where he teaches English. He really likes his job because his students want to learn so they work very hard in class, and do all the homework that John gives them.

He starts work at 7:30 in the morning, but he doesn't usually start teaching until eight o'clock. His last class is at two o'clock. When he isn't teaching John spends his time marking homework or tests, and getting ready for the next day's lessons. His desk is in a big office, which he shares with other teachers. His students often come to see John as he helps them with their work so John is kept very busy.

At four o'clock he finishes work and goes to pick up his wife, Susan, from work. Susan is a secretary, and works for an insurance company. They then go home to see their children, Sally and Ben, who go to school, but spend the afternoon with a babysitter.

In the evening the children do their homework, and then the family has dinner together. After that they sometimes go for a walk or watch a video. John is a football fan, and likes to play twice a week. Susan likes swimming so she often takes the children for a swim at the pool.

During the winter when the weather is cool they go camping at the weekends, but during the summer when it's very hot they visit friends in Abu Dhabi or Al Ain.
